As you are no doubt aware there have been a lot of recent problems with the club web page. Our IT support person has been restoring the pages frequently but cannot always stay on top of it.

We will be transitioning to a different format/platform (currently the site is HTML, we will be going to WordPress which has better support from the web-hosting service). As a result the website will look substantially different, but for the webmaster it will be much easier to maintain—it is essentially WYSIWYG. It should be more dynamic, and we can even have a discussion forum for comments.

We will try to have an interim page up shortly, so we can at least post things like the newsletter and application and renewal forms.

As of right now if the SACRC.org page does not come up you can use the SACRC.club page in order to download the application and renewal forms. The .club page is an older version of the current page. If clicking on the renewal link does not open the form immediately, right-click on the link and then click “Open in new window” on the right-click pop-up menu.

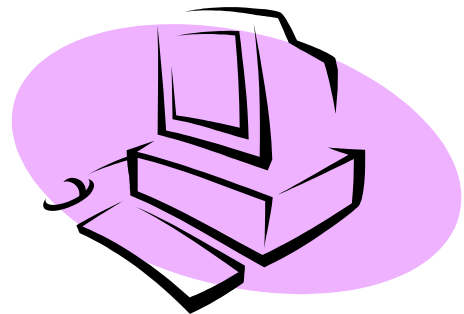

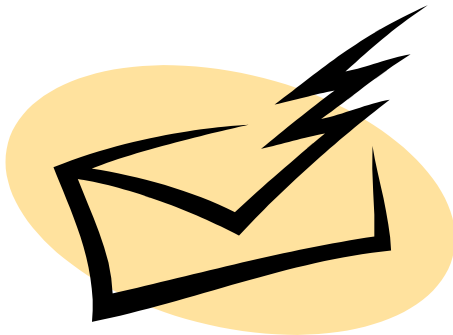

I apologize for all the inconvenience!

Jeff
